Year after year, Mary Rutan Hospital and Mary Rutan Foundation give millions of dollars in community benefit back to the community. It is a testimony to the commitment and leadership of our medical staff, board of directors, employees, volunteers, and community partners, whose dedication to service touches many lives and makes our community a better place.
Using problem solving skills to correct counterproductive ammonia levels in an Aquaponics System; organizing a volunteer schedule to pull weeds; creatively illustrating a children’s book. This wide expanse of life skills are just a few of the essential lessons students are learning at the Benjamin Logan School District through their Growing Gardens, Growing Minds multi-disciplinary project, partially funded by the Mary Rutan Foundation health and wellness grant program.

Annually, Mary Rutan Foundation awards grants to Logan County organizations working to address the needs of the community identified by a health risk and needs assessment that is conducted periodically. In 2019, focus areas for the grants were nutrition, physical activity, substance abuse, and mental health.

Stemming from data gathered from the community assessment along with a project-based learning approach, the Growing Gardens, Growing Minds project emerged. One goal is to promote an understanding that processed foods and diets of fast foods have a direct link to children’s health issues in Logan County, such as obesity, diabetes, joint and muscle pain, and chronic headaches. Mental health issues in children can also be the result of a poor diet consisting of too much sugar and processed foods.

Studies have found that gardening in a school environment can be effective in dramatically improving a student’s mental and physical health through increased physical activity, positive health messages, and reinforced nutritional knowledge of the produce grown and harvested by students. Adam Sorensen with the Mental Health Drug and Alcohol Services Board of Logan and Champaign Counties shared that there a number of emotional and mental benefits of gardening:

- Working with others
- Improving communication
- Developing patience
- Learning how to nurture
- Increasing confidence &
- Practicing skills for life

Going into its third season, the project has accomplished a strong foundation for future growth. Students have practiced their gardening skills with container plants; growing, harvesting, and consuming microgreens; the art of constructing, planting, and harvesting with raised beds; building and maintaining alternative growing practices with an aquaponics system; native plant gardening nurtured by the installation of a bee hive and pollinator plots; as well as a bluebird trail and a purple martin house.

Utilizing various skills and talents of their students, Benjamin Logan enlisted a foods class to expand the palette of students with food tasting opportunities. All students were challenged to create an image that best illustrates the idea and tone of the district project. (The selected logo above was designed by senior Mason Hammer). And most creatively is the collaboration of media arts students and college writing students who wrote and illustrated children’s books. Teams designed a book with a specific age range in mind. The books will be produced and shared with elementary students. English students have been researching food-related issues and learning about the connection of food to culture, history, and economics. These students have started plants in the greenhouse and have enjoyed nurturing the small plants to maturity.

At Benjamin Logan, they’re taking gardening very seriously, incorporating learning fundamentals throughout the district’s K—12 curriculum. Future goals for the project will be to supply items for the cafeteria menu and establish a sustainable student-run business using a local farmers’ market to sell their products. Ultimately, the goal is to meet the physical, nutritional, and mental health needs of their students by teaching them to develop a healthy, sustainable relationship with nature that will carry them through their adult lives and future generations.

Educators leading the charge include Bruce Smith, Ryan Kerns, Spencer Reames, Shelly Lane, Maverick Liles, Chris Bair, Lois Stoll and Sally Stolly.

Volunteers interested in helping maintain the gardens may contact the Benjamin Logan Central Office at (937) 593-9211.
The work of the Mary Rutan Hospital community outreach team is about sharing information to make good choices among our community; encouraging youth and adults to make decisions that head a person in a positive direction.

French philosopher, Jean-Paul Sarte stated, “We are our choices.”

Whether it be making decisions about vaping; the food you eat; the types of activities to be involved in; the friends you keep; or relaxation methods; every good choice is continually developing the type of person you are.

That’s why each program provided by our team of healthcare professionals has a consistent message of making good choices. The team shares the facts and evidenced-based practices along with outcomes. It’s up to each individual to decide to make a healthy choice.

Implementing new strategies to grow a healthy community, the following first-time programs were introduced in 2019:

What’s cool about JUUL? Nothing. That’s what.

Mary Rutan Hospital community health nurse Deb Orr, along with Dr. Jeffrey Weiland, pulmonologist with The Ohio State University Wexner Medical Center presented at all Logan County and Jackson Center high schools on the dangers of vaping. A second vaping program, called Catch My Breath, which was designed for middle school grades, was kicked off. In all, more than 1,000 students have been educated on the dangers of vaping and encouraged not to vape.

Having received a grant from the Mary Rutan Foundation the past two years, the Benjamin Logan School district instills essential life skills in students kindergarten through 12th grade by teaching the age-old practice of gardening.

The Growing Gardens, Growing Minds program is studied by other local school districts for possible implementation.
Power Up for Fitness at Mac-A-Cheek Learning Center. This gem of a student body took part in the PUFF program offered by the MRH outreach team. While a traditional program for area schools, 2019 was the first for the students at Mac-A-Cheek Learning Center. This program offered over 70 at-risk youth tips and tools for living a healthy lifestyle and in making good choices to improve their future health and well being. There was an outpouring of gratitude from the students and teachers. So much so, several other programs are anticipated for the fall when classes resume.

Healthy cooking demonstrations. A number of Logan County families have enjoyed interactive cooking demonstrations where not only did attendees learn about making healthy meals, but also took a bag of ingredients and the recipe home to make the dish again for their families. Six demonstrations were held in mostly at-risk communities. While adults learned about food tips and tricks to make meals go further on a sensible budget, their children were learning about fruits and vegetables and how they fuel our body. This lesson was taught through interactive activities the children enjoy.

Mary Rutan Hospital is privileged to play a role in the lives of so many people. Our outreach benefits include programs that provide treatment and promote health and wellness in response to identified community needs.

Mary Rutan Hospital’s community benefits are further measured by our roles as a major employer in Logan County, a significant driver of the local economy, a charitable organization, an educator, and a community advocate. We look forward to continuing to identify the health needs of our neighbors as we devote ourselves and our resources to meet them.

Mary Rutan Hospital’s purpose remains the same in this changing world of healthcare, to help improve the health and well-being of our community, for individuals as well as larger community groups.

Our Community Health Needs Assessment also helps to guide the planning of hospital programming, including community benefit activities aimed at improving community health. With our community partners, we consider approaches to community health needs collectively and collaboratively, taking into account the available resources and expertise within our community. When we develop community benefit programs to address identified issues and challenges for our community’s health from the Community Health Needs Assessment, we further demonstrate our deep-rooted responsiveness to the needs of the community that we serve.

Health fairs and screenings are offered at local businesses.

“I appreciate the health fair Mary Rutan has to offer. The staff does a great job educating you on the different assessments and what your results mean. I was able to take their advice and with a better diet and exercise I came back this year with improved test results. I can definitely tell a difference with how my body feels, just by making a couple lifestyle changes in a years’ time. Looking forward to next year!”

“This has been a nice opportunity for the families at the Lake to learn about making healthy meals and doing it together. The kids have talked about the classes to me at the center and how much they enjoyed it.”

~ Drew Schick, director Chippewa Outreach

County youth, aged 3 to 12, are incentivized to attend the Logan County Farmers’ Market by receiving $2 in tokens at each visit, to purchase healthy market products or starter plants. This Power of Produce (POP) program is funded by the Mary Rutan Foundation annually.

Mary Rutan Foundation gratefully acknowledges these individuals and organizations that made generous gifts in 2019. The generosity of our donors allows us to ensure that our families, friends and neighbors have access to high quality health care services close to home.

With sincere gratitude we thank our donors and supporters.
A Bountiful Season of Support

In 2019, many gifts were given by individuals and businesses in support of the Logan County Cancer Society.

Due to this bountiful season of giving, over 240 residents of Logan County received much appreciated assistance totaling over $164,500. This assistance would not be possible without the generous support of our many contributors and volunteers. We thank the following for their generosity and support.
